STATEMENT OF WORK

Objectives

To investigate the feasibility of manned reconnaissance aircraft using the basic technology of the Fish program together with the F-111 experience on variable aerodynamics capabilities through variable sweep and other available state of the art advances. The aircraft shall strive for low radar cross section and minimum physical size. The design concept for intercontinental range shall consider but not be limited to parasiting and refueling with the B-58 or modifications thereof.

Guide Lines

a. Cruise Mach numbers shall be at the limit of hydrocarbon fuels (approx. M-4) and altitudes of about 100,000 feet.

b. A basic unrefueled vehicle range of 4000 miles or more is desired at the conditions listed in (a) above. It shall be capable of extended range through parasiting and refueling at reduced performance if necessary in this range extension mode.

c. Design payload shall be approximately 600 lbs.

Basic Study Tasks

Trade off analysis shall be made covering payload, range, and Mach numbers.

Design studies of refueling, B-58 compatability, radar cross section, propulsion cycles, and structural requirements, shall be conducted.

Design layouts including three views and inboard profiles of selected configurations shall be made.

Preliminary vulnerability and operational data shall be generated as required to support and guide the study.
